"The manufacturer," he said, "still colects the war-time tax from the people, but instead of paying it to the govern ment, he keeps it himself."

Senator Beveridge continued: "Mr. President from the beginning of this discussion the question has been sharply raised whether the present act will bring in enough revenue. This amendment partly answers that question, for it will bring in at least $21,461,364.62 more ting or than the present bill will produce. But this amendment does more than provide this needed revenue; it cor rects an injustice to the American people which has lasted for nearly eight years. We cannot undo the wrong that has been done during these years, but we can stop it in the future.

POINTS MADE BY INDIANA SENATOR.

The manufacturer still collects the war-time tax from the people, but instead of paying it to the government he keeps it for himself.

I use the words "tobacco trust" advisedly, for it is a fact capable of nathematical demonstration that the bulk of this tax-except on cigarshas gone into the treasury of the American Tobacco Company, which is known as, and in fact is, the tobacco trust, perhaps the most compact and effective private monopoly in existence.

Why should the trust be authorized still to sell the short-weight packages, and yet be relieved of the tax to collect which these shortweight packages were provided?

Why should the trust be permitted still to collect the tax from the people and put it in the trust's treasury, to swell the trust's profits, instead of putting it in the government's Treasury, to swell the government's revenues?

The workingman, the limit of whose luxury is an occasional 5-cent cigar, pays just as much tax to the government as Mr. Morgan pays when
